Lesson 4.1) Trade

The Unity mostly traveled to the Windward Coast, the current Liberia, because prices here were low. Once The Unity arrived to the Windward Coast, a cannon shot was fired. This was the sign trading could begin. The Africans sailed to The Unity with trade goods, such as rice, water, gold, ivory and slaves. The goods and people were, amongst other things, traded for ammunition, weapons, knives, textiles and alcohol. In The Unity's trade journal they kept track of exactly which goods were traded for objects and humans.
